BOY SCOUTS FIGHT BIG FOREST FIRE

Boys Throw Deadline Around Foot of Hill and Extinguish Blase. Hunt for Treasure.

The Boy Scouts who biled to Chain Bridge on a pleasure trip yeaterday were put to a real test when they discovered a big forset fire on the Virginia shore of the Potoman. After a long strangin with the stames, the boys succeeded in subduling the blaze.

The boys had tramped along the towpath to Chain Bridge and had groused the river and started to pitch camp when shaines were suddenly noticed to leap from over a near-by hill. In a second the entire hillside, which was covered with trees and underturab, was a mass of roaring flatnes. The dry leaves of many sulmmes which carpeted the ground teels fire, striking terror to many of the smaller secute.

In a few moments the boys had decided upon a plan of aution. The entire army of 182 secuta started to clear a wide path around the bottom of the hill. Some of the youngsters used their bare hands. After an hour's ared work, the boys had cleared a path through the dead insides and underturable the dead inside and underturable the dead inside. But he fire was dead.

It was a hard fight for the boys. Some

It was then announced that a treasure, was hidden in the neighboring woods. The hors were given meager information concerning the treasure, and were them sent to search for it. John Stockard, one of the Y. M. C. A. Boouts, finally located it after a long search. As a reward for his ability, young Stockard was presented with a scoul kit, consisting of a frying jain, slaw pan, canton, knife, fort, and groots.

The boys returned to the city at $20 o'clock. They were theed and dirty, but all agreed that it was the best day they had ever apont.
